A Jim Newcomb Production

Outside Edge is a play loosely about cricket!
The action takes place in and around the pavilion.
Roger has enough problems assembling his team to play against the British Railways Maintenance Division Yeading East without the added complications of wives, girlfriends and a series of incidents which destroy his carefully planned schedule.

Richard Harris who wrote the play is one of those authors who, in the company of Alan Ayckbourn, Colin Welland, Dennis Potter and a host of others, loves the game of cricket and the essential commitment and occasional eccentricity so characteristically British.

This play was first performed in 1979.

OUR NEXT PRODUCTION

The Great War and so it is fitting that we have
